CORTEGE AT THE DOCK

Relatives and Friends Had Ex pected to Accompany Dead Man to the Grave.

Why the body of Anderson Fowler, millionaire financier and meat packer of No. 60 West Sixty-eighth street, who dled in the harkor of Genoa, was buried at sea by the officers of the Cunarder Carpathia, that arrived here to-day, is a question that will be investigated to the fullest extent by his grieved and

The burial was made in the face of protests from the aged widow, who was on board. Although every preparation had been made to receive the body and the funeral cortege was at the dock, the only explanation the officers would give was that they felt it inad visable to longer keep the body on board. The burial took place on Feb. 20, when the Carpathia was in mid-At-

Mr. Fowler died of a tumor on the brain while on brain while on brain the haroor of Genon. Feb. 9. He had sailed from New York with his wife on Jan. 26 for a tour of Egypt and the Holy Land. His body was taken from Genon to Nopkes, where it was carried ashore to be embalmed and prepared for transportation to New York.

According to the rules enforced on all steamship lines, bodies are not received unless in hermetically sealed caskets. The body of Mr. Fuwer was turned over to a Neapolitan undertained over to a Nea taker with this understanding, and it was supposed to have been properly prepared for sulpment when it was placed on the Carpathia. Although the ship's officers are reteent, the only reasonable interpretation that Jim does placed upon their action is that they were positive in telling the family that they were unable to longer keep it on board.

Anderson Fowler came to America from Belfast, Ireland, where he had catabilished several meat-curing shops. In New York he became prominent as an exporter of fancy grades of meat. He had wrapch houses in Chicago, Milwaukee, Orraha and Kanasa City. Four years ago he sold out to Swift & Co. and retries from the meat business. He was President of the American Veetllating. Company, Vice-President of the Chapman Iron. Coal and Coke Company, and the Oriental Bank. He was President of the Oriental Bank.
